

Edinburgh, 27th October 1857. MILITARY ACADEMY.

To be Opened on Monday the 12th of next Month, Under the Superintendence of MAJOR D'ASTI. MAJOR D'ASTI, impressed with the strongest conviction of the importance of a MILITARY ACADEMY being established in this City, hopes it will not be deemed impertinent, if he makes an humble offering of his best services to a people for whom he has the highest esteem, and to whom he is under peculiar obligations.

To this intent M. D'ASTI has reduced his first plan to a scale, which, he flatters himself, will answer the end of such Young Gentlemen as are intended for the army, and who wish to receive such Military Education, as they may think of immediate service to themselves, without the immoderate expense of going to England, or to other countries for that purpose.

In this Academy, the following branches will be taught by experienced masters, and no other fees charged to the students than for those Classes which they shall choose to attend, viz.

The French, German, Spanish, and Portuguese Languages; Mathematics, Drawing, Fortification, (particularly those parts of it most necessary for officers of infantry,) with the manner of drawing plans of Forts, Battles, Sieges, &c. as practised by the most eminent Engineers. Artillery-Mining, &c.—The Manual Exercise, with all the Manoeuvres practised in the field; the manner of mounting Guards, pitching of Tents, going the Rounds, &c. carefully taught; Riding and Fencing.

As Geography is indispensably necessary for Gentlemen intended for the army, they will be instructed in said science in a regular and scientific manner, upon a plan entirely new. A large field will be procured for the practice of the Manual Exercise, Fortification, Artillery, and Mining.

Young Gentlemen are boarded by Major D'ASTI, of whom may be had (gratis) a Printed Scheme of all the Rules to be observed in this Academy, and the Fees of each Branch of Education.

From the opportunities Major D'ASTI has had by serving many years abroad, and by being initiated in the principles of the military art, while in the Academy at Louville, under the inspection of the late King Stanislaus, he flatters himself, that he will have it in his power to superintend this Academy with credit to himself, and benefit to such Young Gentlemen as are entrusted to his care.

An Address to the Public, with the Young Soldier's Guide, will be immediately published by Major D'ASTI, and sold by the Bookseller.—price 3 s. stitched, to Subscribers.

SURGERY. CLINICAL LECTURES

By JAMES RUSSELL,

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, one of the Surgeons of the Royal Infirmary, and Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh.

THE Course will consist of Practical Observations on the Cases of the Patients who are in the Hospital during the time of delivering the Lectures; and those cases will be selected which afford most room for instruction. They will also be classed in such a manner as will serve best to illustrate the nature of the disease under consideration. Particular notice will be taken of the distinguishing symptoms of a case. A pathological enquiry will be attempted, concerning the cause of the morbid appearances. Some short history will be given of similar cases. The probable termination will be pointed out under the form of prognosis.—The indications of cure will be laid down from the most approved practice.—And if an operation be found necessary, every circumstance concerning it will be explained—the different modes of performing it related—the reasons assigned for preferring the one which is employed—and the discretion made clear by the exhibition of the best surgical instruments.

In an hospital which contains so many patients, every season affords instances of the most important surgical cases. It is impossible to say before-hand what those will be; but last year there was an opportunity to consider Scrophula, Cancer, Gangrene, separation of Mortified Parts, Dislocation of Bones, Exfoliation, Necrosis, Compound Fracture, Dislocation of Joints, White Swelling of Knee, Morbus Coxarum, Lumbar Abscess, Injuries of the Head, Stones in the Bladder of Urine, Hemorrhoids, Piles, Hemorrhage, Empyema, Stricture of Urethra, Scirrhus Testis, Amputation, Lychotomy, Castration, Cataract, Trepan, Fistula Ani, Perforation of Perforated Duodenum, Reduction of Luxations, and of Hernia, besides other subjects of less moment.

The Course will begin on Wednesday the 31st of October, at six o'clock in the evening, to continue four months, at the rate of Two Lectures a week; on Tuesday and Fridays at the same hour.

The Lectures will be delivered in the Theatre of Royal Infirmary.

Proper Season for Spillsbury's Drops.

To Mr SPILLSBURY, Soho Square, London.

SIR,

I congratulate you on the extraordinary cure performed by your Anticorbutic Drops, in this neighbourhood. Several cases would appear fabulous if I did not know them to be true, particularly the case of Mr YORK, Gunner of Carlisle Castle. In 1779, he was seized with a most inveterate fever, which broke out over his whole body, deprived him of his sight, ulcerous holes in different parts of his body, so large as would contain a large marble. Medical assistance, for several years, in the general line, proved ineffectual, his surgeon and friends despaired of his life, and gave him over.

Hearing of your cures, he had recourse to your drops, which has wrought a miraculous cure on him; his sight is restored, the blotches and sores are all healed up, except a little spot on the back part of his head, and has been so for these twelve months past.

Your medicine has also performed other great cures in this city.

Any person by applying to me, or to Mr York, will receive further information respecting the merits of your drops.

Yours, Sir, &c. &c.

From, Sir, &c. &c.

FRANCIS JOLLIE.

Mr Spillsbury's drops are vended in bottles of 1 l. 2 s. and 5 s. each, nominal duty included, wrapped up in foil bills of directions with PORTY CURES. Also his useful Treatise on the Scurvy, Gout, Diet, Third Edition—price 2 s. with near Ninety Cures, to be had of Mr J. Cawston, Leith, and Mr J. Cawston, Edinburgh; James Duncan, Glasgow; Thomson, Aberdeen; Moffat, Berwick; and of the general venders of medicine throughout the kingdom.

By Authority of his Majesty's Letters Patent,

ETHEREAL ANODYNE SPIRIT,

Prepared by the Proprietor and Inventor, WILLIAM TICEKELL, Apothecary and Chymist, of the City of Bath.

THIS Medicine has great efficacy in all diseases of the Stomach. It strengthens its tone, creates appetite, promotes digestion, expels flatulence, and quiets pain. It is a most powerful remedy in the Gout in the Stomach, in Cramps, Spasms, Hysterical and Hypochondriacal Complaints; and in violent gouty attacks may be administered as an Anodyne, with the greatest safety.

It has equal virtues in many diseases of the Breast, as the Asthma, Hooping Cough, and all other Coughs unattended with inflammation; and in Hectical Haemoptis, it perhaps more efficaciously relieves that cough which is the forerunner of a consumption, than any other medicine. But its peculiar excellence is in the cure of that dreadful and generally fatal disease, the DROPSY of the BREAST; and there is every reason to conclude, from its hitherto successful exhibition, that it has specific virtues in that disorder. It has also been given with remarkable success, in the Anasarca, as well as the Ascites, or Dropsy of the Belly; and is probably the most certain Diuretic hitherto discovered.

The Etheral Anodyne Spirit, and Specific Pills, for the Dropsy, are sold, by appointment of the proprietor, at Mr Newberry's, No. 45, St Paul's Church Yard; by Mr Crutwell, at his printing-office in Bath; and by Mr N. R. CHEYNE, bookbinder, St Andrew's Street, New Town.

The Etheral Anodyne Spirit is sold retail in bottles of 7 s. and 3 s. 6 d. each, stamp-duty included. The Specific Pills for the Dropsy, in boxes of 2 s. 6 d. duty included. N. B. The virtues of this Medicine are further illustrated in a Treatise which is just published, price 2 s.

FROM THE LONDON PAPERS, OCT. 24.
Paris, Oct. 6. The officers, subalterns, and privates who are absent upon furlough, are ordered to join the following regiments of infantry on the 1st of November, viz. Breffe, Beauce, Anjou, Rohan, Penthièvre, Normandy, Bourbon, Isle of France, Lyonnais, Daphine and Guyenne; and these of the following, absent on furlough, are ordered to join their respective regiments on the 30th of the same month: Royal Touraine, Provence, Viennois, La Reine, Artois, Masechal de Turenne, Picardy, Navarre, Lorraine, Vivarais, Armagnac, Aunis, Royal Auvergne, Royal Corse, Royal Vexin, Flanders, Conti, Beaujolois, and Corps de Montreal. The destination of the above regiments are for different parts of the Provinces of Bretagne, Provence, Languedoc, Normandy, Picardy, Artois, Flanders, and Hainault.

Paris, Oct. 12. A courier which left Brest the 5th, brings advice, that there is fix sail of the line and seven frigates ready for sailing, under the command of M. de Soulanges, which it is thought are destined for a distant service. We reckon to have at present 37 sail of the line ready.

Hague, Oct. 16. The Noble and Great Powers, have published an edict denouncing the punishment of death against all persons who shall maltreat the Patriots, plunder their houses, or commit other acts that may disturb or threaten to interrupt the public tranquillity.

Hague, Oct. 18. The States of Holland and West-Friesland were yesterday and this day assembled.

M. W. A. Lestevenon, Lord of Hazerswoude, who was appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Commissioner for settling the frontiers with the Emperor, has received his letters of recall from their High Mightinesses.

A courier from Germany passed through here on his way to England.

Amsterdam, Oct. 17. This day the Swiss regiment Van May marched in here; the Horse Guards and the regiment of Orange Nassau are also quartered in this city, and we learn that more troops are expected.

Leiden, Oct. 18. We have received a copy of a note, which the Count de Bunge, Charge des Affaires of Sweden, presented to the States General by order of his Court, on the 15th inst. disclaiming, in the name of his Court, the note given their High Mightinesses by the Corps Diplomatique on the 5th of Sept. last.

[This pretty well explains how Sweden takes the conduct of Prussia, and accounts for the reports of her intention of going to war.]

Lipsadt, Oct. 13. A Prussian Courier has passed here on his way to Paris; he has orders to return as soon as possible to Mr. Alvensleben, the Prussian Minister here; if he hears of the march of any French troops, to carry an order for the recall of the Prussian Minister at Versailles. It is said that the Court of Berlin has demanded an open and positive declaration from France, whether that Court means to throw any obstacle in the way to oppose the Prussian enterprise in Holland, or if the will co-operate towards maintaining the public peace?

On the 15th there is to assemble near Hildeheim, an allied army composed of Hessians, Hanoverians, and Brunswick troops.

Zanten, Sept. 25. Prince Anhalt Coethen, a general of cavalry in the service of Prussia, arrived here a few days since, and on the 22d pursued his route towards the Hague; being charged, as we are informed, with a particular commission from his Sovereign to the Stadtholder.

Frankfort, Sept. 29. According to letters from Cleves, Baron Capelle is fallen into the hands of the Prussians, who have conducted him as a prisoner of war to Wesel.

Frankfort, Oct. 15. The Rhyngaaf Van Salm, and his Secretary Happe, who of late cut a great figure, arrived at Grumbach, a village in the Rhyngaaf's country, where eight days before the first Lieutenant of Van Salm's Legion, named Hachenbracht, came there from Amsterdam, from whence he retired with great precipitation. It is reported here, that on the 7th inst. a French Courier passed through the Munich to Vienna.

Moyence, Oct. 5. We learn that the Court of England has concluded a new subsidiary treaty with the Landgrave of Hesse Cassel, by which it is stipulated they shall pay to his Highness the half-pay of 6000 men, which, for the present, are to remain in the country.

Venice, Sept. 28. On the 25th, an Englishman arrived here express, in nine days and a half from London, and wishing to make the greatest haste on his voyage to the Levant, he immediately engaged a vessel, which he luckily found riding at anchor here, and whole matter he paid 500 ducats, to conduct him to Alexandria, and on the 26th in the morning they sailed. From thence he is to proceed to Baffa and the East Indies. He did not tell the object of his mission; but we have no doubt here, that he goes to give intelligence of the open part which Great Britain has taken on account of affairs in Holland, to break the alliance between the latter and France, and that a war, which appears to be the natural result of these hostile measures, makes it necessary to give advice to the establishments in the East Indies, where probably in this case the first blow will be soon struck.

Petersburgh, Sept. 25. The Court having received news of the imprisonment of M. de Bulgakow, our minister at Constantinople, as well as the declaration of war which the Porte published at the same time, in a manner so hastily and unexpected. In consequence, the Empress has published a short manifesto, to expose provisionally until another is published, relative to all the last negotiations, by which the Porte appear to be wishing to come to hostilities. The manifesto, after relating the different disputes which have been so often printed in England, concludes as follows: "Provoked by a conduct so offensive, the Empress is obliged, much against her will, to have recourse to arms, as the only means which remain to maintain her rights, which she has acquired at the price of so much blood, and to avenge her wounded dignity by the violence done to her minister. Entirely innocent of all those evils which the war is going to kindle, and will be accompanied with, she has a right to reckon, not only on the Divine protection and the succours of her friends, but also on the wishes of all the Christian world, for the triumph of a cause so just as that in which she is forced to defend herself."

Petersburgh, Sept. 12. Letters from the Ukraine advise, that the manoeuvres of our troops indicate an approaching change of quarters: That the Turks are more strongly fortifying Oczakow, and garrisoning the batteries on the banks of the river Dnieper: That the Ottoman camp near the above fortress, at present contains 70,000 men: That among their cavalry are a great number of Tartars; and that recruits of the same nation are continually resorting to their camp.

Vienna, Oct. 6. A few days ago, Sir Robert Keith, the British Plenipotentiary at this Court, made a verbal declaration to his Imperial Majesty's Ministers, which serves to explain the intentions of the Court of London, in regard to the affairs in Holland. The substance of the aforesaid declaration purports, that his Britannic Majesty, rather dissatisfied at the measures adopted by the Court of France, could not forbear declaring how far he was interested in taking a decided part to support and maintain the constitutional peace and tranquillity of the Republic; and that in consequence of this his determination, he had thought proper, for the welfare of his subjects, and for the support of his dignity, to increase his forces in the present emergency, in order effectually to oppose any obstacle that might be thrown in the way of the King of Prussia's progress. As this notice was merely verbal, we have given the facts, though perhaps not the very words of the declaration.

Vienna, Oct. 6. We learn that during the late storm at Trieste, the waves of the sea rose to an extraordinary height as to threaten the city with a total inundation. The house of Brotenodo's, and several others near the same spot, were nearly covered with water; the sea so furiously agitated the ships in the road, that a Venetian frigate, of 28 guns, lost half her cargo; and a worse fate was experienced by a Greek vessel, the proprietor of which, with his family, had failed to Trieste for refuge, on account of the prevailing troubles in the Ottoman empire. The property of this unfortunate refugee consisted chiefly in 1400 tons of oil. His ship was dashed into a thousand pieces, and his loss is estimated at 60,000 florins; three of the crew were drowned.

Information of the most authentic kind was received on Sunday last from Holland, that the affairs of that distracted republic are not likely to be so speedily restored to tranquillity as it was the general wish and expectation they would have been.

When M. du Thulemeyer, the Prussian ambassador at the Hague, first delivered the memorial that contained the intimation of that monarch's intended interference in the concerns of the States, nothing was said or written upon the subject, as to the motives of his conduct, beyond the mere wish to obtain reparation to the Princes of Orange for the insult he had received. Since the surrender of Amsterdam, however, a different language has been held.

On a suggestion being thrown out to the Duke of Brunswick, since the capitulation of that place, that it would tend to restore quiet, if the Prussian army were to retire from the city; M. du Thulemeyer sent a regular official intimation to the magistrates, that it was the determination of his Master not to quit Amsterdam until every farthing of the expense he had incurred in consequence of his preparations was fully paid; at the same time rating the amount of this expenditure upon a most enormous scale.

This has grown the Council of Amsterdam into the utmost consternation. They cannot order the payment of the money, without regular authority from the States, and by their refusal, are exposed to the daily hazard of being plundered by the soldiery. On their declining to advance the sum demanded, M. du Thulemeyer informed them, he should publish a manifesto, declaratory of the purposes and resolutions of his master. On the interposition, however, of the Princes of Orange, this violent measure was suspended, till the ministry of the Court of London should have been consulted. Accordingly, a Council was held on Friday evening; and two extraordinary messengers were dispatched; one to the king of Prussia at Berlin, and another to Sir James Harris, at the Hague.

The melancholy alternatives which this unforeseen conduct on the part of the King of Prussia presents to the States, are these—If that monarch perseveres in his determination to enforce his demand, the city of Amsterdam will be exposed to speak most leniently, to the horrors of a military contribution. The cause of the House of Orange will be rendered unpopular, and the hostile faction be encouraged and countenanced in soliciting the immediate interference of the Court of France, to rescue them from so unexpected an exaction. If, on the other hand, he fails in getting the money, which he evidently wants at present, for other purposes of ambition in another quarter, and acquiesces in the non-payment, he will probably withdraw his troops not only from Amsterdam, but from the territories of the States entirely, and leave the contending parties to fight it out as well as they can: in that case, it is not apparent that any one thing he has yet done will have much operation in composing the unhappy dissensions of the Republic.

We cannot consider the business in Holland as concluded on the mere surrender of Amsterdam. We should remember that the States General have still a treaty of alliance, offensive and defensive, with France, and while that endures, we cannot with truth say, that we have recovered our old connection. A treaty must be concluded with us, superseding this treaty with France; and this is, no doubt, the difficulty that has occasioned so much delay, and that may perhaps yet force us to continue our armaments, and to hold ourselves prepared for a struggle.

Yesterday at Lloyd's, and about the 'Change, all was peace, notwithstanding the King of Prussia's extravagant demand on the Hollanders. Stocks, however, fell one-half per cent.

There is not a word of truth in the Prussian demand of a sum of money to reimburse his expense in the restoration of the Stadtholder. The falsehood was communicated by an ingenious stock-broker.

Mr. Fitzherbert, his Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary to the Russian Court, lately arrived from the Continent, will make but a short stay in England, as he returns to Petersburg next month, and it is said will carry a red ribbon along with him. Charles Fraser, Esq; brother to the Marquis of Carmarthen's under secretary, is the Charges des Affaires for the British Court at Petersburg during the Ambassador's absence.

The language of the French Minister to his Grace of Dorset, at a late conference, added to certain other circumstances, has given a new aspect to the face of affairs, and renders the continuance of peace between England and France extremely doubtful.

The Duke of Dorset ever since his return to Paris, has been treated with more than ordinary personal attention both by the Court and nobility of France.

The Princess de Lamballe certainly meant to stay here till next Christmas, and she informed several of our nobility of her intentions; but whilst she was visiting the university of Cambridge, her Highness received letters of recall, and in eight and forty hours afterwards, she set out for the Continent.

The Duke of Orleans likewise meditated a trip to the Continent, but was prevented from doing so.

Yesterday morning a special messenger arrived from the Duke of Dorset at Paris, with the olive branch. Without prying into the secrets of the British Cabinet, we will venture to assert, from the authority of our correspondent at the Court of Versailles, that a mediation is en train, and that all points of policy between the Courts of London and Versailles are now in a line of adjustment. Lloyd's Ev. Post.

We have authority to inform the public, that no application has been made to the Lords of the Admiralty by the Committee of West India merchants, for a convoy to their outward bound ships.

An elegant service of plate of 2000 ounces is just finished for the use of Mr. Eden, in consequence of his embassy to the Court of Madrid.

The following is an authentic list of thirty regiments, comprising sixty battalions, the French Ministers have ordered to be assembled on the coast at the following places, viz.

At Brest—Breffe, Anjou, Beauce, Panthievre, Rohan-Montbazou.

At Havre—Picardie, Armagnac, Turenne, Ile-de-France, la Reine, Lorraine, Artois, Bourbon.

At Toulon—Normandie, Guenne, Lionnois, Dauphine.

At Dunkirk—Provence, Navarre, Royal-Auvergne, Flandres, Viennois, Royal Aunis, Touraine, Royal Vaisseux, Vivarais, Beaujolois, Conty, Royal Corse.

Friday, letters were received from William Lucas, Esq; Chief Judge of the Island of Grenada, to one of the first houses in the city, containing intelligence of two French ships of the line, and five frigates having arrived at Martinique, with a large body of troops. This information was confirmed by corresponding accounts received by the Secretaries of State, and at the Admiralty;—the most apt conjecture that can be formed, on this circumstance makes the number of military contained in these ships, amount to 4000 men.

Advice was received on Friday from the Governor of Grenada, brought by the Nancy, Captain Robinson, which is arrived at Liverpool, that two French ships of the line, eight frigates, and two thousand troops were arrived at Martinique; that he has put the island in the best state of defence, but that it was apprehended Dominique was the place first intended for an attack. The above ships are supposed to be the same that touched at Lisbon.

Immediately after the receipt of the above intelligence, orders were sent to Portsmouth for Admiral Alesk, with five sail of the line, to proceed the first fair wind for the Leeward Islands.

To speak positively on the event of war or peace is at present impossible; this, however, may with truth be asserted—warlike preparations have almost every succeeding day since their commencement been carried on to a greater extent, and with increased activity, but particularly the impress service, which was on Friday proceeded in on shore, with 22 ex-tion greatly surpassing that of any preceding day, and extended to objects who were previously disregarded; a considerable number of watermen having been seized by the different pique gangs, and conducted on board the tender.

A draft we are informed, is immediately to be made of Six Hundred men from the Second Regiment of Foot Guards, to be sent on foreign service.

The quotas of men to be raised by the officers of the four new regiments to be sent to India, are settled at the War-Office as follow:

CAPTAINS.
Captain from half pay,	30 men.
Capt. Lieutenant, from ditto,	40
Lieutenant from full pay,	50
CAPTAIN LIEUTENANT.
Lieutenant from full pay,	15
LIEUTENANTS.
Lieutenant from half pay,	15
Ensign from full pay,	20
ENSIGNS.
Ensign from half pay,	10
New Ensigns,	20

Three guineas bounty money is allowed for each man, and as they will stand the officers at an average of eight guineas each, the expense of a commission may be easily ascertained.

The nomination of the officers has been left entirely to the Colonels, as they could not otherwise have become responsible for completing their respective corps; but as the officers from full pay are not allowed to sell their commissions in the regiments they leave, these will of course fall to be disposed of by the Secretary at War, who will thus gain on the one hand nearly as much as he loses on the other.

It is fixed that Lord Heathfield returns to Gibraltar. It was his own offer, and he has had the thanks of the King for it. This day the captain of the ship, laden with stores for that fortress, took leave, and received his instructions; and in about a fortnight's time his Lordship proposes embarking for his government.

Last week a sloop laden with ammunition, stores, &c. failed for Jersey; and on Thursday or Friday next, General Conway, the Governor, is expected to set off for that island.

If, as it has been asserted, Lord Cornwallis has absolutely written home for a reinforcement of both naval and military force, it must have been occasioned by the conduct of the French in that part of the globe; and plainly proves, that at the very moment they were amusing our ministers with promises of friendship at home, they were actually alarming our governors abroad, for the safety of our possessions.

The French Ambassador, speaking of the late unprovoked menaces and vapouring language of the British Court, said, "Now, I perceive that there was truth in the appellation which Mr. Sheridan gave to Mr. Pitt, of the Angry Boy."

Accounts from Bombay received over land a few days since, and dated the latter end of April 1787, make mention, that the Foulis East-Indiaman had arrived there from Bengal, and was soon to be dispatched to the French squadron in the West Indies positively amount to four or five ships of the line, and ten or a dozen float frigates and sloops; a force sufficient, when our inferiority is considered, to give much alarm and trouble at least.

On Saturday last died, at the episcopal palace in Hereford, in his 80th year, the Right Hon. and Right Rev. Lord James Beaulieu, bishop of that diocese, and one of the sons of the first duke of St. Alban's. He was created Bishop of Hereford in the year 1746.

Extract of a letter from Calcutta, March 7.

"The minister of the Nabob Vizier is now on a visit to Lord Cornwallis. You may judge of the state these great men travel in, on hearing that this person, Hyder Beg Khawn, wanted to bring upwards of eight thousand horse and foot with him from Lucknow, besides his equipage, &c. This, however, was not permitted by Government, so that he has now simply about forty elephants, three times as many camels, a few companies of Sepoys, and between two and three thousand servants and camp followers. Lord Cornwallis sets out to visit every military station in the country, which will keep him from Calcutta some months. The Raverworth will be ready to sail about the latter end of July." (If she sails about the end of July, or beginning of August, she will arrive here in December next.)

Extract of a letter from Portsmouth, Oct. 22.

"On Friday failed from Spithead, with General Conway and suite on board, for Jersey, his Majesty's brig Flirt, Captain P. Brett; and with her failed a transport, with part of the 17th regiment, to reinforce the garrisons in the islands of Jersey and Guernsey. On Saturday arrived here from Plymouth his Majesty's ship the Powerful, of 74 guns, Captain A. Sutherland. Sunday, came in from the eastward, the Colossus and Irresistible, of 74 guns each, and the same day returned to Spithead the Scipio, Standard, and Ardent, of 64 guns each, that lately failed to the Nore for the purpose of bringing round the entered and impressed men for the grand fleet here; so that when the Barbett of 98 guns, that is daily expected to leave the harbour, joins us, we shall have riding at Spithead 19 sail of the line, 17 of which will be ready to put to sea at a few hours notice, as the Pegase and Triumph, from their bad condition, will remain here, the former as a receiving ship. No orders whatever are yet come down for the sailing of any part of the fleet, though Admiral Sir Edmund Alesk expects hourly to be dispatched away with a separate squadron. A few days since, his Majesty's ships Andromeda and Swan, lately from abroad, came into harbour to be paid off; most of the crew of the former were drafted on board the Bedford; as, since Sir Edmund's flag has been hoisted, every assistance has been given to complete her complement. That part of the 55th regiment that are now here keep themselves in constant readiness to embark on board the Chichester, one of the class of forty-fours that has

Extract of a letter from Manchester, Oct. 12.

"The principal manufacturers of this town are in a great consternation on account of the remitances from France having failed, since the commencement of the present hostile appearances. It is supposed that the French merchants are now indebted to them upwards of 400,000l. and if a war should take place, what chance is there of being paid? This is the blessed effect of the cursed Commercial Treaty, which, like a deceitful Syren, appeared at first in all the bewitching forms that Administration could teach it to assume, and now threatens us with a long addition to the bankrupt list, unless government should interfere with the Court of France. Provisions are very dear here, and the town swarms with recruiting parties for the army and militia. No pious gangs have yet made their appearance, although the town swarms with sailors, who have fled for shelter here from Liverpool, Lancaster, Whitehaven, &c. Some of them have been so riotous, that we have been obliged to call in the assistance of the military; and within these few days tranquility has been restored.

"A dreadful accident happened here last Thursday, through some charcoal having been suffered to remain all night in a room where three children lay, and they were all found dead the next morning. The charcoal had been removed by one of the children from another room where it was placed in order to dry it, with a view, as was supposed, of warming themselves, it being a remarkable cold night. These unfortunate children were buried with the most affecting solemnity."

FASHION

A correspondent who is just returned from Paris informs us, that the dishabille of the French ladies is at this time perfectly simple and becoming. They have entirely abolished the gros deir; and the enormous swell of the handkerchief is much diminished!

A long-sleeved white dress, with a coloured sash, is the morning attire; the hair loosely frizzed, and either in curls behind, or a kind of club, tied very easy, with the hair falling over, in curls. Hats are still worn in dress, and large gold ear-rings of uncommon elegance. The winter fashions are not yet entirely determined on; but it is supposed no very material alteration will take place, except what the change of seasons require.

Salmon Fishings to be Let.

UPON Friday the 2d day of November next, betwixt the hours of four and five o'clock afternoon, within the house of John Burt vintner in Perth, The whole FISHINGS in the River Tay, belonging to John Hay Balfour, Esq; of Leys, are to be let by public roup, for a number of years to commence at the ensuing fishing season.
These fishings are of great extent, stretching along the south side of the River, betwixt the lands of Carpow, and the Pow of Lindores, being about a mile and an half in length, and by reason of Mugdrum Island lying in the middle of the river, and running nearly the same length as above, the hawling places are double to those on the land side. The fishermen can haul their nets on the land side, and on both sides of the island. They have employed upwards of twenty boats in a season, and great numbers of salmon have been caught there.
The shore of Newburgh lies on the side of these fishings, and a cellar for preserving ice could be made at a small expense in the back brew of Mugdrum, having a north exposure, and lying also contiguous to the fishings. These circumstances must be of great convenience and advantage to such as would vend the Salmon fresh to the London market; and a vessel generally in every eight or ten days sails from Newburgh for London.
Any person inclining to make a private bargain, may give in their proposals betwixt and the day of roup, to the proprietor at Mugdrum, by Perth.

The progress of writs and conditions of roup, with the rentals and plans of the lands, are to be seen in the hands of Robert Stewart, writer in Edinburgh; and for further particulars apply to him, or to Alexander Nairne, accountant in Edinburgh, or Robert Stewart, Esq; of Clockfoldich, the factor, who will show the grounds.
